THE OBJECTIVE

Clarkson Regional Health Services moved to an all new office location after maxing out their old space. The new office needed to be inviting and open, but still provide employees privacy. Along with having maxed out their old space, one of the main drivers of their move was the need for a larger conference area. They wanted a space that could accommodate large groups, as well as an area to lounge comfortably for more informal conversations.

THE SOLUTION

Dealer partner Jh Design worked with Clarkson Regional Health Services to design a functional and beautiful new space. Starting with the reception area where a two-toned ARRIVE reception desk greets visitors. By integrating the optional ARRIVE ADA add-on, the space remains accessible for all visitors.

Private offices feature a custom MODERN desk shell with waterfall gables which provides modesty and wire management, helping keep the workspace organized. Ample storage is provided with under surface MODERN storage and wardrobe towers to house jackets in cooler weather. Open office stations were created using a combination of MODERN desk shells and custom laminate gallery panels. Mobile pedestals and wardrobe towers provide functional storage for all workstations while under-hutch task lighting helps keep the space light for workflow. All workspaces were outfitted with KOLBY task seating for a comfortable and ergonomic sit. The breakroom area features single-sided LET'S MEET tables, providing quiet break space for employees. Finally, the important conference and collaboration spaces (a key driver of their move) feature a mix of traditional yet contemporary conference tables using SOMMET; and BEATBOX, UNIFY and VIBE for soft seating areas. These meeting and collaboration spaces are perfect for today's work environment, offering a variety of work modes for employees.

THE RESULT

Clarkson Regional Health Services' new offices are a hit! The new meeting and collaboration spaces are a perfect fit for their culture and are helping to promote better collaboration and connection. The light and airy space, combined with modern finishes and textiles created a warm and inviting atmosphere for both employees and visitors. By carefully selecting products that met the clients needs, Jh Design created a cohesive space that promoted efficient workflows was created. OFGO STUDIO products provided a sophisticated environment, combining durable construction with functional elements.
